I was wondering if it's a general problem with all DVD drives. I know that with DVD drives it's a dead DVD drive when it reads the disc, not a CD. It'll read blank discs, but I'd like to know if it's a problem with the DVD drive itself, or something else. I wanted to reinstall Ubuntu after I messed up the first time, but I can't find the ISO files anymore, and I'm not sure where I put the ISO files. Can someone please help me? I'm using an HP 13-n0005t netbook, and I'm not really sure what the problem is. I tried to boot Ubuntu from my USB stick and a bootable CD, but neither worked. I'm having some boot problems. I just got a new PC, but my Windows 7 isn't working. I tried all of the usual things: disk check, MBR, re-installed Windows, etc., but nothing seems to work. When I try to load Windows, I get an error that says: I'm trying to figure out why my internet is faster when I'm using my wired connection, and then it slows down when I use my wireless connection. It's not getting close to being as fast as it was before my wireless dropped out. I have an old computer that has a tower case. It has a slot on top that I can stick a card into, but I'm not sure if it's PCI or PCI-Express. I don't think it is PCI-Express. Is there anyway to determine what kind of card it is? I could put a PCI card into it, but I'm not sure how I'd get a PCI card that would work with it. I have Windows 10 Home on 82157476af
